New law will have drivers putting down phones when on the road

BY SYLVIA COLE
Review Staff

Talking on a cellphone while driving is on its way out in Alberta. So is texting, programming GPS devices and eating. The province announced Wednesday the distracted driving law that will come into effect September 1st.

"I've been in cars where my friends are holding their phone like this and texting while driving with their knees," said Alyssa Willberg, who had her arms straight out with both her hands holding a cellphone in front of her. "I don't feel overly safe in a car when that's happening," she said. Willberg and her friend, Kadie Huges, are still learning to drive. They see the benefits of the new law that keeps people focused on the road.

"Some things, like eating or taking a drink while you're driving isn't that big of a deal but I do see texting and talking on the phone as distracting," said Huges.

Police said some extreme forms of distracted driving that they've seen include people reading books, driving with their knees while eating, and putting makeup on.

"Distraction is huge," said Cpl. Warren Wright. "When people take their eyes off the road ... sometimes their hands follow their eyes and refrain from going in a straight line." He said there'll be a break-in period when the law is first introduced when people will likely receive warnings.

"If people need to take their eyes off the road they need to pull over and park. Especially when driving in excess of 50 kilometres you just don't have that time to react and brake." He said there will be days, similar to safety enforcement days, when police are out specifically targeting distracted drivers, but said it will be used mostly to determine in collisions whether distracted driving was a determining factor. "It's another tool in our toolbox."

Several international studies show that 20 to 30 per cent of all collisions involve driver distraction, and distracted drivers are three times more likely to be involved in a collision than attentive drivers.

The new law prohibits the use of hand-held cellphones for talking or texting, the use of other electronic devices, reading, writing and personal grooming while driving. Drivers can still use cellphones or radio communication devices, but only if they use them in a hands-free or voice-activated manner. This means the device is not held in the driver's hand and is activated by voice or a single touch to the device. Drivers may use a hand-held citizen's band (CB) or two-way radio when escorting oversized vehicles, to contact one's employer, or when participating in search, rescue and emergency management situations. A ticket will cost $172.

"I think it's a good thing," said Gerald Platt. "I don't drive much anymore, but I'll sit here and watch people come down the road and I can see them looking down or somewhere else." He thinks it'll help reduce the number of collisions.

"Absolutely," agrees Ellen Tevendale. "There's too many collisions because of people talking and texting."

High school students graduate

BY SYLVIA COLE
Review Staff

Students graduated from Didsbury High School over the weekend.

"You've done good," said school board trustee Gord Kerr before the class Friday night in the school's gymnasium. "I know that's bad English. You've made us laugh, cry and in the end helped us age."

Seventy-three students graduated over the weekend and $32,725 was given out in scholarships. Medallions were handed out to students who received the highest mark above 80 per cent in each course. The valedictorian, Daniel Pochapski, took in the most medallions that evening for math, pure math, biology, chemistry and social studies.

"I taught math for over 20 years and in that time I've never had a student with 100 per cent going into the exam and coming out of the exam with 100 per cent," said principal Garth Dagg, who taught the course.

Other medallion recipients included Tyler Ridley for English, Ashley Christensen for social studies, Fabienne Voegeli for concert music, Emily Johnson for jazz music, and French, McKenzie Code for guitar, Samantha Taylor for forensic science, Stephanie Hutcheon for leadership and Katie Bergeson for world history. Top female athletes of the year were Nicole Luft and McKenzie Code and James Lefebvre and Keifer Paulgaard for male. Lefebvre was also chosen as the all-around student.

"Wherever your path may take you, try your hardest, laugh ... show the world what it means to be a Didsbury High School graduate ... and be a cut above the rest. Go forth and pursue your dreams," said Pochapski during the valedictorian address.

Students also celebrated their grad banquet and grand march Saturday evening at the Memorial Complex.

Mar stops in during tour last week

BY SYLVIA COLE

Gary Mar, running in the Progressive Conservative leadership race, stopped in Didsbury last Thursday during a tour around the area. He started in the morning at a breakfast in Edmonton and made his way south into Didsbury at lunch. He stopped in at Tara Oilfield Services Ltd. to speak with workers during a barbecue outside.

"If 90 per cent of our materials go to the U.S., that's a good thing. But I'm of the view, ... if there's one thing better than one really good customer, it's two or more really good customers. So we need to develop other marketplaces—places like China, places like India. ... I hope to have your support ... to become the leader of the Conservative Party. I'll work hard to keep the markets open," he said to the crowd of Tara employees. Mayor Brian Wittal, town admin and a few builders and developers were also in attendance.

Mar also went to Mugs afterwards to meet with people interested in learning more about his campaign. Mar left shortly after 2 o'clock.

Elks give museum project a lift

BY SYLVIA COLE
Review Staff

Museum director Frankie Kelly is hopeful the installation of the elevator will be up and running end of July.

Construction crews have been working steadily in the last month since the museum learned the federal government would donate $71,000 to install an elevator.

The welcome news was the last of $113,850 needed for the build.

Last week, Didsbury Elks donated $1,000 to the project.

"This will go towards the restoration project of the front entrance. For the scraping and the plastering of the front doors," said Kelly.

The elevator will be at the front of the building by the set of doors facing 21st Avenue.

Because of its location those doors will now become the main entrance-way into the building and will bring people right upstairs to where the principal's office was back when the building was a school.

The elevator will allow those with difficulty climbing the stairs to access the top floor of the museum where exhibits are on display, as well as reach the basement where the bathrooms are. Kelly hopes the lift will help the elderly, disabled and those pushing young children in strollers.

Fundraising for the elevator began with a $3,100 donation in 2008. Since then, the museum collected $15,800 from the town and county and through donations, and also secured

Opinion

Editorial Responsible driving up to drivers

DAN SINGLETON

With the province's new distracted driving law set to come into effect this summer, West Central Alberta drivers who prefer to keep less than their entire attention on the road will soon have some big choices to make.

Specifically, those motorists will need to decide once and for all whether their bad driving habits are really worth the risk to themselves and others.

The Alberta Distracted Driving law makes it unlawful to operate a vehicle while using a hand-held cellphone, texting or e-mailing, using other electronic devices such as laptop computers, video games, cameras, video entertainment displays, entering information into GPS units, reading, writing, printing or sketching, or personal grooming.

Drivers will still be able to use a hands-free cellphones, as well as hand-held citizen's band (CB) or two-way radios when escorting oversized vehicles, to contact one's employer, or when participating in search, rescue and emergency management situations.

The law applies to all vehicles defined under the Traffic Safety Act, including bicycles, and applies to roadways in both urban and rural areas. Violators face fines of $172.

"This legislation gives law enforcement agencies in Alberta an additional tool to help make our roads safer," said Frank Oberle, solicitor general and minister of public security. "We are sending an extremely strong traffic safety message to motorists across the province: When you're in your vehicle, your focus must be on driving."

The province says about 30 per cent of all motor vehicle accidents involve distracted driving, with distracted drivers being three times more likely to be involved in a collision than drivers who focus their attention solely on the road.

Despite the government's hope that this new legislation, and specifically the fairly hefty $172 fines, will prompt more drivers to start focusing their whole attention on the road, the chances are the message will hit home with only some drivers.

For example, Alberta has a strict seatbelt law yet judging from recent police seatbelt awareness blitzes in the region, many, many drivers would rather risk fines than to wear their belts. No doubt the same will turn out to be true when it comes to distracted driving.

The bottom line is that the government can only do so much to make drivers act responsibly – in the end it will remain up to the drivers themselves to make the choice between being reckless and being safe.

And here's a question for the Stelmach government: If the goal is to send an "extremely strong traffic safety message", as Minister Oberle claims, shouldn't drivers smoking cigarettes also be banned?

Letters

We just need people to care and think of the history in town

I am writing this letter probably just over a month too late but felt compelled after seeing this week's article in the Didsbury Review, Building Didsbury's History, on page 10.

In May there was a hearing on the two house lots on 21 Avenue (2018 21 Ave. is one of them), to change the designation from residential to high density residential.

The re-designation was to accommodate the developer of the empty lot who is building an apartment unit. I have no problem with this building getting built; it will be really nice to see that empty hole/lot of about eight years being used. My negative feelings are from the idea of knocking down one of those historic houses. The Kauffman House (1915-1916), which is a "nice example in brick", as written in the above-mentioned article.

The announcement of the final reading of the re-designation was around the same time the Town of Didsbury held its first Town of Didsbury Show Your Community Pride night and to celebrate our heritage. Yes, to celebrate our heritage with the possible demolition of a historic house. Another interesting thing is a couple of weeks ago I saw an ad in the town area of the Review looking for someone to sit on a historic survey committee.... Well I guess this is one house the committee won't have to worry about. What about all the grant money that was put into this house in the 1990s by the previous owner? Just under $100,000! This is grant money, gone into a house to preserve it and now we are going to allow someone to knock it down or move it? How is the Town of Didsbury going to look on further applications of heritage grants or surveys with this committee or government grant body? Why would the heritage, community spirit even consider anything else from us – "Oh don't look at Didsbury, they just got rid of a heritage house, and they don't really care or deserve any more money."

The town just received a grant for a historic survey to be done. It seems there are all these statements, events and interest in preserving our history but really when you get down to it, does anyone really care? I own a historic house. We bought it about 12 years ago and knew that it would be always a work in progress, some years more than what I thought, but I love my house. I know the expense and stress of owning a historic house but is that any reason for me to sell it to the highest bidder to be torn down? I hope that does not happen when the time comes when we have to sell.

I admire Ashbury Designs, their designs and architecture, but I was hoping that the house could stay and the historic house could be worked into their plan somehow. Maybe making the house the main entrance to the building, a garden oasis, games room for the occupants of the apartment, a den or maybe a place to rent out when company comes and the occupants of the new unit just don't have the room to spare.... I think there are MANY other uses for this wonderful house than a pile of rubble or moving it.

We CAN save every old house.... We just need people to care and think of the history and the years before us.

Quote from Laura Tanner, Didsbury Review, June 21

"He (Kauffman) served as chair of the school board for a time, and was an avid curler. Unfortunately, this historic house is in danger of being taken down, so have a look before it's gone!"

I would like to note that my feelings were communicated with a town councillor in May but because of personal life events at the time I was unable to attend the open house at the town chambers regarding this.

Thank you for your time,

Joelle Fournier

Beware of scams targeting seniors

STALKING SENIORS!

A house I just listed in Didsbury has one of those expensive walk-in tubs with a door, that seniors purchase when they need help. For a normal family purchasing the home.... the very expensive tub has to be removed as it's the only bathroom in the house. It's not a tub for a pair of four-year-olds!

I suggested I could list the tub on Kijiji for them and I did, with the title of the listing "Soaker Tub for Seniors for Sale."

Well, I got a response the next day. The name looked normal (not foreign) and the respondent said he would love to buy the tub, and the price was just fine. Could I please send him my full name, address, telephone number and bank so he could arrange transfer of funds. Hmmm, I thought.

I replied, "thanks for your offer, but I think I would prefer to show you the tub in person and then arrange for a payment to my client's family."

He replied "I'm currently out of the country, so just send the information I asked for as well as your bank account number so I can purchase the tub."

I replied "as you're probably in Nigeria, perhaps just give me a call when you get back to Alberta". He hasn't replied since.

The lesson someone, somewhere was scanning the Kijiji ads for "senior" in the title and decided to give me a try. It's a serious trick to pull but we need to be aware that seniors are a real target for these scammers. It made me pay attention!

Mayor's Corner

Let's talk sewage – upgrades and expansions

BY BRIAN WITTAL
for the Review

Sewage is not often the type of topic most people want to discuss, but this month the Town of Didsbury got some great news – all of which revolves around sewage and wastewater. So let's talk sewage.

At the end of May I received a letter from the minister of transportation informing us we were the recipients of cost-shared grant funding under the Alberta Municipal Water/Wastewater Partnership for upgrades to our lagoon system. This $6.2 million grant, which is about 47 per cent of the total estimated costs, makes it possible to expand our present lagoon system to accommodate future growth.

The original lagoon was built in 1966 and expanded in 1976. A significant improvement program to the sewage treatment facility was implemented in 1994 and 1995 and has managed to meet our needs up until 2011.

Our greatest concern with the present system is a lack of storage space. Did you know our wastewater is treated and then stored for up to 12 months? The Town of Didsbury is located on the Rosebud River and because it is not a fast-moving, high-flow waterway we are only able to discharge treated effluent into it once a year.

Obviously, the storage requirements for our community are substantial and as our community grows, so does the need for additional wastewater storage.

The technical details and site plans include constructing 9,200 cubic metres of new anaerobic cells.

An additional 72,000 cubic metres of new facultative cells will also be constructed. And finally, remediation of the existing upper lagoon cell (including reconstructing berms and installing an under-drain system) with an expansion to incorporate roughly 240,000 cubic metres of storage.

Basically what all of that means is the town plans on constructing a healthy, weatherproof, environmentally aware system with lots of storage for a potential population of approximately 7,000 residents.

While receiving a grant and moving forward with much-needed upgrades is an exciting and necessary venture, there still remains the burden of cost.

The entire project is estimated to cost approximately $13,400,000 and even with the $6.2 million from the government, we are still facing a hefty price tag.

The Town of Didsbury will have to take out a debenture for $2.2 million of the total $13 million project. We expect the engineering and design stage to begin later this summer with construction of the lagoon expansion beginning in spring 2012.

Showrider accepted to Calgary Stampede

BY SYLVIA COLE
Review Staff

It's the last week of school and juggling schedules won't finish when the last bell rings for Stephanie Griffiths.

Stephanie Griffiths will be performing as a showrider during the Calgary Stampede with her horse, Ember.

Griffiths, 15, and her horse, Wild Fires Ember have a jam-packed summer ahead of them.

"It's been a major time commitment," she said of getting accepted as a showrider for the Calgary Stampede. "I've already had to turn down some other activities." But the experience, she said, has been worth it.

Griffiths, from Didsbury, has been learning to ride and care for her horse for the last seven years with one of the local 4-H clubs, Ropes and Reins. Now she's using her skills in parades all over southern Alberta and into the U.S. as one of 12 showriders.

"My Dad was watching TV early in the morning one day and saw the showriders. They were doing a lot of things I can already do with my horse," she said of learning about the opportunity.

It was already February and the deadline to try out for this year's Stampede had come and gone in October.

"I thought we'd call and ask about the possibility of going next year," she explained. She was told the tryouts were over but they were still looking for one more person. Griffiths was sent a couple of patterns she'd have to complete with Ember. She had her set filmed at the Didsbury Ag grounds and uploaded her demo to YouTube.

"It was very suspenseful. I wanted to tell my friends about it but I didn't want to say anything until I knew if I'd get accepted," she said of waiting.

Griffiths will perform musical rides with her team every day during the Stampede and serve as a colour guard and greeters to the Stampede grounds. The Stampede Showband accompanies the group.

They'll also go into the July 1 parade in Airdrie as well as the Stampede's parade, July 8. They were also down in Portland, Ore. at a parade during the Portland Rose Festival earlier this month, but didn't bring their horses because of the equine herpes virus.

"We marched instead, three at a time and carried roses." She said when they're on the horses they carry the flags and do different moves such as breaking into two groups and crossing back and front of each other.

She said the event will make her eligible for some high school credits.

"It's really exciting, and it's been a lot of fun."

Renegades number one in the league

BY SYLVIA COLE
Review Staff

Didsbury Renegades peewee lacrosse team placed first in playoffs for Central Alberta Lacrosse League over the weekend.

The Renegades, defending champs from 2010, breezed through the first round of playoffs June 18 and 19.

"It's called a double knockout so you keep playing until you lose twice, then you're out," said coach Jason Switzer of the playoffs.

The group played Blackfalds and Red Deer the first weekend, winning the games 9-3 and 8-7.

"We did fairly well in the first one but the second one was close, too close," said Switzer. The team's biggest competition was Lacoka, a team made up of players from Ponoka and Lacombe who were placed first in the league for the season heading into playoffs. It was the only team the peewees lost against all season but on Saturday were able to beat them 7-6. Lacoka went on to beat their next team and were back to play the Renegades in the final game but ultimately lost 9-8.

"They're the nemesis," he said, laughing. "Overall we had a great season," said the coach, explaining by the end the team was down from 12 players to nine with injury, one member with a suspension, and another who moved. "It's been a tough haul."

The bantams finished the season June 18 to 19 when they were eliminated from playoffs after losing their two games. The team came in 8th overall of 12 teams. The tykes and mini tykes finished the season at the beginning of the month, with the end-of-season fun tournament in Ponoka.

"My Dad passed away from it," said Colleen Brandsgard of what motivated her to take to her bike over the weekend. "I also like riding so I think this is a great campaign." Brandsgard is from Didsbury and started in Gasoline Alley with her husband, Kelly. The two travelled to Rocky Mountain House.

"It was cool at first but it warmed up," said Dale Waugh from Bowden who did the ride for the first

"We had a great turnout. The weather cooperated for us, and it raised money and awareness." The money raised will go towards awareness, research and equipment for prostate cancer.

Volunteer receives top award

BY SYLVIA COLE
Review Staff

Barb McClean was shocked when her name was presented as volunteer of the year last Wednesday night.

"This is a high honour," said McClean, who has been a hospital volunteer for the last 21 years, working mostly in the recreational therapy department of long-term care. She's also a paid partner with some seniors and has done work at the lodge.

"I just love it and it's something I'll continue to do," she said with a smile beaming from her face. This isn't the first time she's been chosen to receive the award from the hospital. She also received recognition in 1992.

"Barb is here every day, all day," said Dawna Faryna, volunteer coordinator with tears building up in her eyes. "She'll work all day and then go home and - can pickles!" she punctuated.

"I do a lot of volunteer hours," said McClean. She started when a woman she worked for had to move into the long-term care wing of the hospital. "I told her not to worry, and I said I'll look after you." McClean soon became a regular visitor and the current volunteer coordinator at the time told her she should remain as a volunteer.

She's also become a mentor for the new volunteers coming in.

"She is all about the people who live in long-term care," read Beckie Nickerson from a letter. She also went on to write that McClean takes tireless effort to make it feel like home for both the residents and family who visit.

Police Briefs

Car accident

A woman was taken to hospital early Thursday morning after she lost control on some loose gravel east of the Acme overpass. The woman, described by police as in her young 20s and from the Cremona area, was travelling eastbound on Rge. Rd. 292 in a red Honda Civic when she swerved to avoid the gravel and went into the south side ditch. Police were impressed it wasn't fatal, describing the ditch as a deep coulee. Airbags were deployed and the woman was wearing her seatbelt. The fire department from Madden also arrived on scene.

Fence post nabbed

A ten-foot fence post was jacked from a backyard in Carstairs sometime between June 9th and 19th in the 600 block of 11th Avenue. The post was green and was purchased for about $15 by the owner to fix the fence. She was away at a funeral and noticed it missing when she returned. The post is green and is 4x4x10.

Rummaging

A string of vehicles were broken into in a three-day stretch last week. Eight incidents from Didsbury were reported between June 19 and 21. Police believe the break-ins are connected and are following up on leads. They believe they have narrowed the suspects down to three people. Police continue to remind people to keep their doors locked at all times.

Wed. June 29

This is game night at the Rosebud Hall starting at 7 p.m. Bring your favourite games and snacks to share and enjoy!

Fri. July 1

The Didsbury R/C Fun Flyers Model Airplane Club will be holding its 20th Annual Canada Day Fun & Fly at its club airfield northwest of Didsbury. Please follow the signs located one block north of Westglen School to the airfield. The public is invited to attend from 12 noon until 4 p.m. Guest flyers from around Southern Alberta will be flying a variety of miniature aircraft. Club members will be pleased to answer questions and discuss the various aspects of the hobby. During the afternoon, a public address system will keep the spectators informed as to the various aircraft and stunts they are watching. There will be a concession on site for a light snack. Please bring your lawn chairs and join us for the afternoon. Any questions, phone Grant (403) 335-2390.

There will be a concession on site with frozen homemade meals and excellent fresh food entrees.

Curling is not just a winter sport anymore. For years now, curlers from here and surrounding districts have been entered in the summer bonspiels in Empress, Youngstown and Irma. All towns have now endorsed the Stirling System which means Stick Curling or Slide Curling. We have six curlers going to Youngstown to curl June 27 & 28 - Carson and Marianne Schultz, Grant McCulloch and Isabelle Pitkanen (Carstairs) and Dave and Glenda Britton. Then they will be in Empress July 10th where they will take part in six different spiels by July 14th. Then it's on to Irma for July 25 & 26 for the Annual Rodeo, Ball Tournament and Curling; will let you know later how they all made out.

The Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors is as follows: Past President - Margo Ward; President - Diana Steer, Shorthorn Art Studio; Vice President - Shelley Fakir, Through the Grapevine Landscaping; Secretary - Ian Kennedy, Professional Photographer; Directors - Lou Meiklejohn, Roy Scabor, Manager Treasury Branch, Melynda Crampton, "Coffee News"; Treasurer - Kelly Kitchur, Gilded Gallery.
